Teaching literature in classrooms develops the students ability to appreciate and enjoy a wide range of literary or creative texts and other related cultural forms.

The five genres of literature that the students should be familiar with Poetry, Drama, Prose, Non-fiction and media.

Poetry:

Poetry is often considered the oldest form of literature before writing was invented, oral stories were commonly out into some sort of poetic form to make them easier to remember and recite.

Poetry today is usually written down but still sometimes performed. Poems are heavy in imagery and metaphor and are often made up of fragments and phrases rather than complete grammatically correct sentences.

Drama:

Drama is a unique tool to explore and express human feelings. Drama is an essential form of behavior in all culture. Enacting drama on the stage dramas are usually called plays.

Prose:

Prose is a form of language that exhibits a grammatical structure and a natural flow of speech rather than traditional poetry. The common unit of prose purely grammatical such as a sentence grammatically such as a sentence or a paragraph. The most typical varieties of Prose are novel and short stories, while other types include letters, diaries, journals and non-fiction.

Non-fiction:

Non-fiction includes histories, text books, travel books, news papers and literary criticism. Most of what students practice writing in the classrooms is often used to support and expand student's understanding of fiction texts.
