INTRODUCTION

From ancient to till today Globally, women are poorer than men and are already feeling the effects of this covid 19 crisis during lockdown. Women represent a larger proportion of the informal economy in all countries. The intersection of gender with other conditions of vulnerability exacerbates the negative impact of the crisis; therefore, it is a priority to pay attention to the most vulnerable groups such as migrant women, domestic workers, women deprived of liberty, women heads of household, women from the indian community, and the most disadvantaged women from rural areas. The gender perspective becomes even more important in addressing this crisis

OBJECTIVES OF THE WEBINAR

- To discuss the challenges of household women during covid 19 issue
- To discuss about the role and responsibility of the household women
- To discuss about the burden of the household women during covid 19
- To understand platform of the household women in Indian society during covid 19 crises.

INOUTCOME OF THE WEBINAR

Women represent half of the population in all the countries of the region, bring different perspectives and assume greater leadership on the differentiated needs of women. The participation of women in spaces where real power resides is what makes the difference. some sectors have questioned basic agreements regarding the rights of women established over 25 years ago. By organizing this webinar entitled with - “IMPACT OF COVID 19 ON HOUSEHOLD WOMEN CRISIS”

Useful to Understand the recovery of this crisis whether it may create opportunities for women or to whole population. It also helpful to understand the equal participation of women in the their family and efforts to maintain the COVID-19 crisis society.

It is helpful and significant in itself for reasons of equality, justice and democracy. Domestic workers are more exposed to the loss of their jobs in conditions that condemn them to poverty.

The COVID-19 crisis cannot lead to a decline in women’s labor participation, and therefore their access to economic rights must be guaranteed.

Migrant workers are experiencing serious economic and health consequences. In particular, migrant women engaged in care and domestic work are experiencing serious economic and health consequences as a result of the crisis.

Increase in violence against women and girls on the internet. During this time of emergency and isolation, technology is a fundamental tool for access to information, education, work, and even facilitates access to services for women victims of violence, but it also opens new paths for perpetrators.
